Ingo Leubner started Crystallization Consulting in 1998 to provide practical information to companies that are concerned about the manufacture of crystalline materials with defined crystal sizes. His goal is 'Better Crystals for Better Products', and to support this claim he published a technical handbook, 'Precision Crystallization- Theory and Practice of Controlling Crystal Size' (CRC Press, Taylor and Francis Group, 2009). Leubner's consultancy is the only worldwide business providing these services.

Ingo joined the Penfield Business Association in 2003 to learn about local businesses in the area. He uses his experience to give helpful advice to business and consulting explorers on how to successfully decide on their business, the core values needed, and simple and inexpensive ways to find customers.

He has been a Penfield resident for over forty years and held several leadership positions at First Baptist Church, including supervising youths who worked on 'Habitat for Humanity' projects. He was a member of the Parent-Teacher Association in the Penfield Schools, and recently his business was chosen by the Penfield Post for an article about local businesses.

In his spare time, Ingo enjoys studying and contributing to the knowledge about the solar system and the universe by presenting his findings at Rochester and International science meetings. Who knows, if it works out, Penfield may soon be known as the home of the new Einstein!

Congratulations to Crystallization Consulting for being selected as our August Business of the Month.
